J. H. GTLMORE, ROCHESTER UNIVERSITY. THE Epistle to the Hebrews is comparatively brief (one could read it through aloud in an hour), yet it contains no less than fourteen distinct references to those themes which especially interest this Conference. From the solemn prelude God hath, in these last days, spoken unto us in His Son (Ch. i: i, 2), to the exultant finale, for yet a little while--how little! how little! and He that shall come will come and will not tarry (Ch. x: 37), the same motif constantly recurs. Of the 303 verses into which the epistle is divided, thirtysix, or nearly one verse in every eight, has reference to the second coming of our Lord, or to events that are closely related to his re-appearing; while the proportion of such verses in the entire New Testament is said to be only one in twenty-five. I did not realize the prominence of this blessed hope in the Epistle to the Hebrews till last winter, when Dr. Henry Foster, of Clifton Springs, requested me to take charge of his Bible class during his absence in Florida. In going through the epistle then, with some fifty mature and spiritually minded Christians who were willing to get out of the Word all that the Holy Spirit had breathed into it, almost every Sunday brought into prominence the appearing of our Lord. Indeed, one good brother, who began the...
