They mix it in boiling with this corn. That has no taste and one must be a savage to eat it. While the corn is green is the time when they hold the most feasts and they prepare it in different ways. First they roast it in the fire and eat it so; many French eat it thus. When it is very tender they pound it and make porridge of it, but the most esteemed among them is the cold meal. It is corn, considerably mature, which they boil, then roast to dry it, and then they pound it; and this flour has the same effect in cold water as wheat flour put into hot water over the fire and has a taste sufficiently agreeable; the French eat it with milk. They also have a species of corn which is smaller than the other and which comes to maturity in three months. That they dry and then without pounding it boil it with meat. This little corn, boiled with a turkey or some pieces of fat meat, is a favorite dish with them. They are very dirty in their houses, in their drink and food, as upon themselves. One seldom sees among them a crooked or humpbacked person. They have very good figures. Their women are very ugly; they are like slaves to their husbands. They do everything in the house, work the ground, sow, and harvest the crop. The men sometimes...
